

A place where the rain
never dampens a cowboy's spirit,
only his boots.

*Some say the cowboy is the man between his hat and his boots.
Proud as he is of his bonnet, it's his boots that give him the most pride.
If he had the money, a cowboy would wear boots so fine you could nearly see the wrinkles in his socks. But no matter what their style, his boots are hand made for one thing only — stirrup work.
Shoes are for other men. The cowboy pulls on his boots.*

P0002265

199

10/1/99
10/1/99

2061033661

Source: <https://www.industrydocuments.ucsf.edu/docs/zfcv0004>

2061033661